Connecting with the Forest

THIS IS A SWEDISH
FÄLUGORV

Småland

 Sweden

No fashion. Just forest life.

The forest has always been humanity's second home — a sanctuary offering protection, resources, and a deep connection to the natural world. In Sweden, forests cover an astonishing 68% of the land, providing a vast and accessible refuge for exploration and tranquility. Among these woodlands, the Småland forest stands out, rich in history and a testament to human resilience.

Historically known as the "Poor Man's Sweater," the forest shelters us from wind and rain, and supplies wood for warmth. It's abundant with berries, mushrooms, herbs, and opportunities for fishing and hunting. For centuries, well-trodden paths have welcomed those seeking solace or adventure, making the forest an integral part of everyday life rather than just a distant travel destination.

BLÅBÄR

Småland

*"For you who wants
to pick blueberries,
not climb Mount Kilimanjaro."*

The Småland forest, in particular, has nurtured a uniquely resilient and inventive spirit among its people. Surviving and thriving in its dark and rocky landscapes required careful thought, resourcefulness, and sustainable practices. This legacy has fostered a special form of entrepreneurship and a deep respect for nature's gifts.

Unlike remote mountain peaks or open fells, the forest is a form of nature readily available to most of Sweden's and Europe's population. It's welcoming, comfortable, and simple — yet also mysterious and full of untold stories. The forest stirs the imagination and offers experiences that enrich our lives. It's more than just a collection of trees; it's a living symbol of our connection to the earth.

*"To feel good you have to go completely wild
from time to time."*

There's a true joy in stepping away from the daily grind — to leave behind to-do lists and embrace freedom, even if just for a while. To feel good, sometimes you have to go completely wild. Embracing the wild doesn't necessitate extreme adventures; it's about finding comfort and authenticity in the natural spaces around us.

Our mission is to make you feel at home in the wild. We craft durable outdoor and hunting clothing, focusing on what truly matters. This commitment won't prevent hailstorms or deter ants, but it will help you navigate nature's unpredictability with confidence. We prioritize quality and comfort for your everyday life in the woods, so you can fully embrace all the wonders the wild has to offer.

The forest invites you to become part of its story. It's a place where you can find peace, challenge yourself, and reconnect with what it means to be human. By embracing the wild, you embrace a life enriched by nature's beauty and wisdom.

No fashion. Just forest life.

Get Down with Nature's Coziest Insulation

Quick facts about down

Definition: Down is the soft, lightweight, insulating material found beneath the feathers of birds.

Properties:

Thermal insulation & breathability: Down has excellent insulating properties; it traps air to create a thermal barrier while also allowing natural breathability.

Weight: Down is lightweight, providing high warmth without being heavy.

Compressibility: Down can be compressed and regains its original shape, making it popular in sleeping bags and down jackets.

Quick facts about feathers

Definition: Feathers are the stiffer, outer parts of a bird's plumage. They come in various sizes and shapes.

Properties:

Stiffness: Feathers are stiffer and more durable than down, providing structural support.

Water resistance: Feathers can be more water-resistant due to their often oily surface that protects against moisture.

Weight: Feathers are heavier than down and provide less insulation.

In our commitment to quality and sustainability, we use RDS (Responsible Down Standard) certified down and feathers in our products. This certification ensures that our materials are sourced ethically, promoting animal welfare and responsible farming practices.

Abisko Insulation Hybrid Jacket

Let RECCO® Worry About Finding You!

Check out our RECCO® video and see how it works in real life!

The RECCO® technology is an advanced rescue system used by organized rescue teams to quickly locate people who are lost in the wilderness or buried in avalanches. At the heart of this system is the RECCO® reflector, a small, lightweight antenna that can be integrated into various outdoor gear, such as jackets, helmets, and trousers. Unlike other location devices, the RECCO® reflector is always on; it doesn't require batteries or any activation, making it a reliable safety feature. Rescue teams use a RECCO® detector, which sends out a signal. When this signal hits the reflector, it bounces back, allowing the team to pinpoint its location. With RECCO® technology, outdoor enthusiasts can enjoy activities like mushroom or berry picking, hiking, and skiing with added peace of mind, knowing they can be more easily found if something goes wrong.

Belts

How to measure a belt

Take your waist measure; that is your size. The belt is measured from the buckle to the middle hole, to make room for adjustments for a tighter or wider fit. You can also measure a belt you already have from the buckle to the middle hole. The result matches what size to pick.
